Rabbits

T 1 Y 2 W 4 Name Meeda

Rabbits are mammals. Thay don't lay eggs but they give birth to live youngs, so thay still have babys. ~~And~~ They feed there babys milk.

~~Don't use the same adjective twice in the same sentence.~~

Rabbits have warm fur to stay warm and cosy. thick They also have really long ears. ~~And~~ There tails look like buns. ~~And~~ Rabbits come in many colours so that thay could camiforge.

Don't start sentences with "and".

Rabbits move fast because their/there have powerful legs help them jump to escape from other predators.

They eat grass, ~~hey also~~ Text fruit and vegtibles.

Baby Rabbits are called kittens.
They ~~step~~ sleep with these eyes open to get away from prediters.

Rabbits

Rabbits are mammals. They don't lay eggs, but they give birth to live young, so they still have babies. And they feed their babies milk.

Rabbits have thick fur to stay warm and cosy. They also have really long ears, and their tails look like buns. And rabbits come in many colours so that they could camouflage.

Rabbits move fast because their powerful legs help them jump to escape from other predators.

They eat grass, hay, and also fruit and vegetables.

Baby rabbits are called kittens. They sometimes sleep with their eyes open to get away from predators.

Meanda, what a fantastic report on rabbits! You have found so many "expert" facts, like how they give birth to live young and feed them milk. I was especially impressed by your detail about rabbits sleeping with their eyes open to stay safe from predators—that is a very cool fact! You used great descriptive words like powerful and camouflage. You are becoming a real animal expert!

SMART Goal

I will check that every sentence ends with a full stop and starts with a capital letter, and I will try to start my sentences with words like "Rabbits" or "They" instead of "And".